Supporting the LGBT community. Rainbow crosswalks a permanent ode to Vancouver Pride

EMILY JACKSON
emily.jackson@metronews.ca

The verdict is in: Vancouver's freshly painted rainbow crosswalks are "fabulous."

As an ode to Vancouver Pride, an annual celebration of the lesbian, bisexual, gay, trans, two-spirited and queer community, the city painted four rainbow crosswalks at the intersection of Davie and Bute — and unlike last year's trial run, these crosswalks are here to stay.

"Seattle should do this," said American tourist David Mialia, 46, expressing support as he happened upon the intersection boasting the second rainbow crosswalks in the world. (The other ones are in West Hollywood, according to the mayor's office, and there have been temporary ones in cities such as Sydney.)

Installing the permanent rainbow design, a symbol of inclusivity on the Pride flag that originated in San Francisco, shows that the city has come a long way in countering homophobia, Coun. Tim Stevenson said Monday.

"This really does mark the strongest support the city has shown towards the LGBT community," Stevenson said.

It cost $25,000 for thermal plastic paint supplies and city crews to install the crosswalks overnight, along with picnic tables in a new pedestrian plaza closed to cars on Bute between Davie and Burnaby Streets.

"We feel that this is money well spent to mark the heart of Davie village," said Scott Edwards with city engineering services.

Traffic can easily be accommodated, Edwards said, adding that there's no research to suggest colourful crosswalks will cause distraction or accidents.

Passersby stopping to snap photos and smile at the rainbow intersection were neither rattled by the price tag nor concerned about traffic.

(The sample could be biased, obviously, as the crosswalks are in the heart of the gay village.)

"It's a huge splash of colour — I couldn't help but smile," said area resident Kevin Bercier, 42.

Late-Monday vote

Council approves Kitsilano greenway

Kitsilano is getting a new bike lane and seaside greenway — or, as opponents consider it, a street closed to commuter cars along a ritzy oceanside strip.

City council unanimously approved the controversial $6-million Point Grey Road greenway late Monday night, although council's two NPA councillors opposed many of the plan's elements.

"This plan is not perfect," Coun. Andrea Reimer said in her concluding comments. "This has been a dividing point in the community for 40 years. And as a result of inaction by councils who have backed off plans again and again, the traffic hasn't gone down. It has gotten less and less safe for everyone there."

Of the 93 remaining speakers from a list of 217, only a smattering showed up to express their views at the meeting. (Speaker 107, otherwise known as Lululemon founder Chip Wilson and the owner of a seaside property on the affected route, didn't make it.)

Safety was a major talking point from people on both sides of the issue. Before the vote, Coun. Heather Deal proposed a list of amendments, including monitoring safety along roads that would see increased traffic due to the changes and improving the plan for people with disabilities.

Mayor Gregor Robertson recused himself from the vote as an "abundance of caution" since he purchased a home in the neighbourhood.

RCMP Const. Bill Bentley testifies during the Braidwood Inquiry into the death of Polish immigrant Robert Dziekanski on Feb. 25, 2009. A judge cleared Bentley of perjury charges on Monday. JEFF HODSON/METRO FILE

Mountie not guilty of lying in Dziekanski Taser probe

Perjury trial. Judge rejects Crown theory that officers' similar stories meant they colluded

An officer who was among the four Mounties at the Vancouver airport the night Robert Dziekanski died has been found not guilty of perjury at a public inquiry into the Polish immigrant's death.

Const. Bill Bentley bent over and cried into a tissue after the verdict.

B.C. Supreme Court Justice Mark McEwan, who heard the case without a jury, said that for a conviction, the Crown had to prove Bentley knowingly made a false statement, but prosecutors failed to do that.

Bentley was the first to be tried for perjury for his testimony during the Braidwood Inquiry into what happened the night the officers responded to a call about a distraught man throwing furniture in an arrivals area.

Dziekanski died on the airport floor in October 2007, after what Bentley said in his notes was a confrontation in which Dziekanski came at the officers screaming and brandishing a stapler before he was Tasered and wrestled to the ground.

But a video, taken by a traveller, contradicted some of Bentley's notes and statements.

The Crown argued at trial that Bentley and the other officers colluded on their stories to homicide investigators and then lied at the inquiry to cover up the deception.

Taser controversy

- The fatal confrontation between Robert Dziekanski and RCMP fuelled a national debate about the safety of Tasers.
- Comm. Thomas Braidwood's final report in 2009 concluded the officers used too much force and had no justification for using the Taser.

During Bentley's trial, the Crown called several witnesses from the airport and prosecutors relied on a comparison of the officers' notes and statements. Prosecutors tried to prove the collusion by relying on similarities in their notes and statements.

But there were early hints that McEwan had doubts about the Crown's arguments.

McEwan heard no evidence that the officers met to concoct a story, and the Crown did not specify when or where the officers allegedly co-ordinated their stories.

During final submissions, McEwan interrupted the Crown several times, raising doubts about the Crown's theory and noting civilian witnesses made the same sort of mistakes as the Mounties.

"They don't have the exact same stories — I've compared them," McEwan said. "In context, they sound like four stories told by four people who saw the same thing. There are some differences."

Coast Guard rescue. Two sailors plucked from 'bathtub' in Fraser River

Two men who set sail in a seven-foot fiberglass boat that was mistaken for a bathtub were plucked from the Fraser River, along with their vessel, by the Coast Guard Sunday night.

Brandon Austin, a search mission co-ordinator with the Joint Rescue Co-ordination Centre in Victoria, said the pair were spotted around 9:45 p.m. off Garry Point in Richmond, where they were bound for the north arm of the Fraser from Steveston.

"Our hovercraft went out there to investigate and these guys, apparently, weren't as well prepared as they thought," Austin said.

"They only had a flashlight, they didn't have a radio or anything like that."

Both were wearing life jackets, but Austin said they didn't put up much of a fight when the Coast Guard offered them a tow back to shore.

"They're right by the shipping lanes, and there's a lot of commercial fishing vessels there, so there's any number of things that could have happened," he said. "Personally, I wouldn't recommend it, but at the same time, they obviously thought they knew something." KATE WEBB/METRO

Vancouver Pride has come a long way in 35 years

Global hurdles. Homosexuality is still illegal in 78 countries and is punishable by the death penalty in seven countries

A celebratory barbecue, a mayor raising the symbolic rainbow flag and a civic status designation given to a parade celebrating the LGBTTQ community.

The contrast between this, the "fabulous" launch and proclamation of Vancouver Pride Week by Mayor Gregor Robertson on Monday, and the anti-gay laws and homophobic violence recently sweeping Russia wasn't lost on the politicians, citizens and activists celebrating the city's 35th annual "Happy Pride" at city hall.

"We can't afford to take this for granted," Robertson told the crowd, reiterating widely shared comments he made last week urging Russia to "end its violent crackdown" on the LGBTTQ community before hosting the 2014 Olympics in Sochi.

Homosexuality is still illegal in 78 countries and is punishable by the death penalty in seven countries.

Zdravko Cimbaljevic, founder of Montenegro's modern LGBTTQ movement, said Vancouver's proclamation gave him hope four days after he helped host his country's first Pride parade, where hooligans threw rocks and bottles at those marching.

"It's making me feel like we're on the first steps making the history in Montenegro," said Cimbaljevic, who will be one of the grand marshals in Saturday's parade.

It took a few decades of hard work and community advocacy for Vancouver to reach its high level of acceptance and diversity, Coun. Tim Stevenson said as he led a panel discussion in council chambers.

Foreskin advocates briefly interrupted Vancouver's official Pride Week launch to protest their exclusion from the 2013 "prude" parade. They allege they're wrongly banned because one of them marched naked last year, but organizers say 200 organizations applied for 120 spots and they simply didn't make the cut. EMILY JACKSON/METRO

Stevenson, who came out 38 years ago, is "stunned" by the revolutionary change in Canada, along with comments the Pope made Sunday that gay people shouldn't be judged.

"I don't know about you, but I never thought I'd see the day," he said.

And while there's still a long way to go — "Take your Russian vodka and pour it down the drain," he said — Stevenson applauded the city's decision to grant the 650,000-strong Pride parade civic status, a designation formerly reserved for the Celebration of Light and the Remembrance Day ceremony. Pope Francis reaches out to gays

'Who am I to judge'?

In first news conference as Pope, Francis says gay clergymen should be forgiven and their sins forgotten

Pope Francis reached out to gay people, saying he won't judge priests for their sexual orientation, in a remarkably open and wide-ranging news conference Monday as he returned from his first foreign trip.

"If someone is gay and he searches for the Lord and has good will, who am I to judge?" Francis asked. "We shouldn't marginalize people for this. They must be integrated into society."

Francis' predecessor, Pope Benedict XVI, signed a document in 2005 that said men who had deep-rooted homosexual tendencies should not be priests.

Francis was much more conciliatory in his first news conference as Pope, saying gay clergymen should be forgiven and their sins forgotten.

The Gospel

"Today Pope Francis has, once again, lived out the gospel message of compassion for everyone."

The Rev. James Martin, a Jesuit author and commentator, viewing the Pope's remarks as a sign of mercy.

The comments did not signal any change in church policy.

Catholic teaching still holds that homosexual acts are "intrinsically disordered."

But they indicated a shift in tone under Francis' young papacy and an emphasis on a church that is more inclusive and merciful rather than critical and disciplinary.

Francis also said he wanted a greater role for women in the church, though he insisted that they cannot become priests.

Court verdict: Princesses reclaim $4-billion estate

A peacock dances inside the Faridkot estate in New Delhi, India, Monday. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

It has all the makings of a bestselling novel. An Indian maharaja crowned as a toddler and rich beyond imagination falls into a deep depression in old age after losing his only son.

After his own death a few months later, his daughters, the princesses, don't get the palaces, gold and vast lands they claim as their birthright. Instead, they are given a few dollars a month from palace officials they accuse of scheming to usurp the royal billions with a forged will. The fight rages for decades.

On Saturday, an Indian court brought this chapter to a close, ruling that the will of Maharaja Harinder Singh Brar of Faridkot was fabricated. His daughters will now inherit the estimated $4-billion US estate, instead of a trust run by his former servants and palace officials.

Chief judicial magistrate Rajnish Kumar Sharma, in the northern city of Chandigarh, finally gave his ruling on the case filed by the maharaja's eldest daughter, Amrit Kaur, in 1992, a court official said on Monday.

Hundreds rage at police after an officer guns down teenager

Toronto streetcar slaying. Assurances from police chief do little to quell outrage

Sammy Yatim, 18
FACEBOOK

Hundreds of protesters shouted at police and called for justice Monday as they gathered at the spot where a young man was shot dead in an altercation with Toronto police on a streetcar.

The mother and sister of Sammy Yatim, 18, were among a crowd of protesters that stretched more than a block as marchers headed to the intersection where the teenager died on Saturday morning.

The death has sparked a flood of anger at police, who have suspended the officer involved. The crowd chanted "Shame!" with a handful of protesters angrily confronting police monitoring the march. Protesters briefly stopped and vented outside a police station.

Ontario's police watchdog is probing the incident, which was captured on video. Yatim was reportedly armed with a knife when he was shot.

Police Chief Bill Blair said the force will do all it can to answer the public's questions.

In addition to the Special Investigations Unit probe, he said he would be conducting a review to see if police procedures were followed. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Hudson's Bay to open Saks stores in Canada

Retail. Following $2.9B acquisition of U.S. retailer, HBC will roll out chain's luxury and discount banners north of border

Hudson's Bay Co. says it will open up to seven full-line Saks stores in Canada and about two dozen locations under a discount banner once it completes a $2.9-billion US friendly deal to acquire the U.S. luxury retailer.

"We're going to move as quickly as we can," Richard Baker, HBC's chairman and chief executive, told analysts during a conference call on Monday.

"We think there's a lot of opportunity for us to accomplish that rollout relatively quickly."

Saks currently operates 42 stores, including its flagship Saks Fifth Avenue in New York.

HBC says it may transform some of its Bay stores into Saks locations, open new Saks stores in existing buildings or, in some cases, build new stores from the ground up.

The retailer says it also plans to open up to 25 Saks Off Fifth discount stores in Canada and is eyeing the possibility of starting a real estate investment trust.

Paul Swinand, an analyst at Morningstar, said the deal will give HBC a portfolio of prime U.S. real estate.

"There's no way they could have accessed these real estate assets at any other price, or in any other way," said Swinand.

"These are assets in locations where you couldn't get that size of a store otherwise."

The combined portfolio of the Bay stores in Canada, Lord & Taylor in the US Northeast and Saks locations would comprise more than 32 million square feet of retail space, said Baker.

"The combination of Saks and HBC real estate creates an unmatched, highly valuable North American retail real estate portfolio, with a coast-to-coast footprint serving three strong banners," Baker said.

Smartphone ownership is surging, poll finds

Not only is smartphone ownership way up in Canada, users are getting increasingly addicted to their mobile devices, suggests a report released by Google.

Based on online surveys with 1,000 Canadians earlier this year, the report estimates that 56 per cent of adults were using a smartphone, up from 33 per cent in early 2012.

About eight in 10 smartphone owners said they don't leave home without their mobile device. Two-thirds of them said they had used their phone every day in the past week.

About 35 per cent said they'd become so reliant on mobile connectivity that they'd give up TV before having to part with their smartphone. "Mobile has become a core part of how people live their lives today," said Google Canada's head of mobile advertising, Eric Morris.

SEX ISN'T FOR POLITICOS TO DECIDE

SHE SAYS

Jessica Napier
metronews.ca

Politicians aren't really known for being a particularly prudish bunch — Anthony Weiner, Bill Clinton, Eliot Spitzer and other public officials have had their share of high-profile sex scandals. And yet, a number of public figures made headlines last week for their sexually conservative policies.

American politician Ken Cuccinelli recently launched a web campaign aimed at resurrecting Virginia's Crimes Against Nature law, which would ban oral and anal sex between any two individuals. If passed, the law would make certain sex acts a felony with no consideration of context, effectively turning happily consenting, pleasure-seeking adults into sex offenders.

Across the pond, British Prime Minister David Cameron announced a new initiative to restrict access to online pornography throughout the country. This default porn filter will automatically block access to all sexually explicit websites and British citizens who are interested in viewing racy content will be forced into having a very awkward conversation with their service provider.

Both Cuccinelli and Cameron cite "protecting children" and "family values" as justification for their overreaching policies. "Family values" being one of those vague phrases that has no concrete meaning and is employed emphatically by right-wing politicians to attack everything from gay marriage to working mothers to Gossip Girl.

There's no doubt that this is tricky territory. Obviously intervention is necessary when it comes to things like child pornography, exploitation and sexual predators, but allowing government bodies to regulate what is or isn't sexually acceptable behaviour among the masses is a very slippery slope. I can't help but think of the overzealous minister in Footloose who is determined to outlaw rock music and dancing in his fictional Bible-thumping town.

Whether you agree with Cuccinelli's Crimes Against Nature law or Cameron's porn filter, you have to admit that both policies seem utterly impossible to enforce. This effort to BAN ALL THE NAKED THINGS is just an exhausting waste of time and public resources.

Sex is everywhere, online and in person, and it comes in seemingly limitless varieties. Teaching our children that sex is something that is immoral and should be forbidden is going to create confusion and unhealthy attitudes toward their own sexuality.

When it comes to sexual pleasure, government officials should have no right to come between two consenting adults — or between an individual and a computer screen, for that matter.

Rather than finding new ways to control private (and legal) sexual activities, we should focus on having frank discussions with our children about sex and the dangers of the web.

It's down for a dogfight

Dog parachutes from airplane

An elite air-force unit has a new weapon for fighting crime — a parachuting dog. A Belgian shepherd named Jany jumps out of the aircraft at more than 1,000 feet, while attached to the chest of an officer. The explosive detector dog makes dozens of jumps with the Colombian Group of Air Special Commands, specially set up to counter crime and terrorism.

The 90-man-strong group is tasked with combating terrorist and criminal activity at all of Colombia's airports. Each paratrooper carries their field equipment on their body for the jumps, which are fraught with danger as landing areas are often covered with anti-personnel blast mines.

Letters

Do we wait for someone else who is mentally ill to commit a crime? Or do we try and change our society that acts only after the crime has been committed. The government offers little help to the families that are fighting for their adult children's lives to keep them from harming others and themselves.

What a tragedy we are facing. How many times do we hear or read that someone has been murdered due to the mental state of another?

As a society we have buried our heads in the sand because our government chooses to not deal with this issue. Time for change.

G.I. Joe: Retaliation

Director. John M. Chu

Stars. Dwayne Johnson, Byung-hun Lee

G.I. Joe: Retaliation is a case of ADHD masquerading as a movie, hiding behind incoherent directing, writing and editing to minimize mayhem so as to secure a kid-friendly rating.
It's like a giant explosion on a distant planet, observed but not felt. The stolid Dwayne "The Rock" Johnson joins grumpy Bruce Willis as the new top square-jaws of the changing cast, most of the original players having wisely opted for better gigs or early story exits.
Based on an action figure and cartoon, G.I. Joe is reduced to an incomprehensible blur of throbbing testosterone tin men (and women), who rat-tat-tat their machine guns and shout inanities at each other.
Even when something really big happens — say a major world city being blown up — the effect is like being hit with a clown's Nerf bat.

Woody Allen: The good, the bad and the ugly

Director's cut. Filmmaker's body of work is nothing but prolific — here Metro ranks the best to the worst from 1969 to the present

MATT PRIGGE
Metro World News in New York

Woody Allen on the set of his latest film, Blue Jasmine. CONTRIBUTED

It's that time of year again — that is, when Woody Allen releases his annual film. The exact time of year fluctuates. (In the '90s, it was always in the fall, in time for Oscars. For the last few years he's been an improbable summer movie filmmaker.)

And whenever one of his new films is released, it's time to do that thing when you sum up his career, looking back over his rather daunting body of work — a film per year, with few exceptions, since 1969!

Jordan Hoffman, over at Film.com, has done a terrific film-by-film ranking of Woody's 43 1/3 films, though he also includes some that he only wrote and/or acted in, like What's New, Pussycat?, Play It Again, Sam, and The Front. (It feels weird calling him "Allen" — which is, in fact, his actual first name — and especially "Mr. Allen," a la The New York Times.)

It's a great round-up, one not afraid to mount cogent defences of such runs like Shadows and Fog and Another Woman.

List justifications

Love and Death, our number one, is not always cited as Woody Allen's best straight-up comedy, much less his best overall film. People tend to gravitate toward Sleeper, which is a touch more sophisticated and reined-in. But that's why we love this: this movie is insane. It's incredibly dense, with parodies of Dostoyevsky and Ingmar Bergman and Sergei Eisenstein flying madly about. (It's crazy this is one of his biggest money-makers.) However, it's his last full-on comedy before the hybrid of comedy and drama that is Annie Hall.

And here, without any neurotic self-deprecation, is ours. (Note: This is only theatrically-released films, not TV work, including the impossible to find Men of Crisis: The Harvey Wallinger Story — which, if anyone has a line on…)

Stone-cold masterpiece

Cory Monteith

Monteith 'will forever be in my heart,' says Lea

Lea Michele is breaking her silence online after her Glee co-star and real-life boyfriend Cory Monteith died of an overdose earlier this month.

The actress posted a photo of her and Monteith on Twitter Monday, along with a message thanking her followers for "helping me through this time with your enormous love & support." She added: "Cory will forever be in my heart." Monteith was found dead July 13 in Vancouver. An autopsy revealed the 31-year-old actor died of an overdose of heroin and alcohol. He and Michele played an on-again, off-again couple in the popular Fox series and were an off-screen couple for about a year.

THE WORD
Dorothy Robinson
scene@metronews.ca

Brad Pitt and Jennifer Aniston, both happily happily engaged to other people eight years after their divorce, MIGHT spot each other at this September's Toronto International Film Festival, and this MIGHT be a big deal, because they MIGHT hug hello, and they MIGHT talk, and they MIGHT wish each other well, and this will cause the universe to implode (if the folks at Us Weekly have anything to do with it, that is). A normal, civilized, post-divorce catch-up sesh surely is off the table for these two because in media, civil exes are boring. We want to catch these two either a) in a blow-out as big as a Real Housewives fight, or b) with their pants down in the bathroom at the Four Seasons Toronto. If they're anything like normal Americans, though, they'll just be courteous and chat for a few minutes. Either that or pull the ol' "Oh, my ex is here? Let me pretend to look very busy on my phone for the next hour and a half."

Lisa Kudrow

While talk of a Friends reunion movie may be dead in the water, stars Matthew Perry and Lisa Kudrow admit they wish the show hadn't gone off the air when it did. "If I had a time machine, I would like to go back to 2004 and not have stopped," says Perry, sitting in for Piers Morgan on his talk show, with Kudrow serving as his guest. Kudrow agrees: "If it were up to us, you know, individually, then yes. I would keep going," she says. "There would have come a time anyway when someone would have said, 'We've had enough.' But why not have fun until they do?"

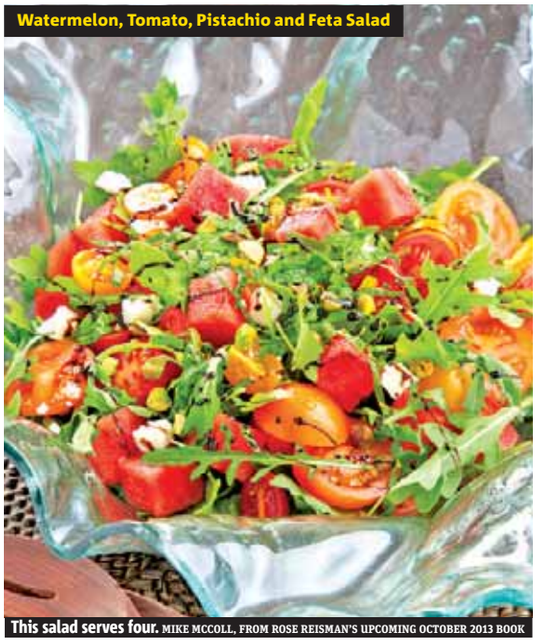
Watermelon introduces its savoury side in light salad

Watermelon, Tomato, Pistachio and Feta Salad



This salad serves four. MIKE MCCOLL, FROM ROSE REISMAN'S UPCOMING OCTOBER 2013 BOOK

ROSE REISMAN
For more, visit rosereisman.com or follow her on twitter @rosereisman

Nothing beats a summer salad that combines watermelon, tomatoes and feta.

The balsamic glaze is sensational, and you avoid the calories and fat of oil-based dressings.

Follow directions exactly for dressing. If too thick, just add a little more balsamic vinegar.

1. To make the salad: Place arugula, tomatoes, watermelon, feta, pistachios and mint in a large serving bowl.

2. To make the dressing: In a small skillet, add the balsamic vinegar and maple syrup. Bring the mixture to a boil, and cook at a rapid boil for 8 to 10 minutes or just until the mixture bubbles on the entire surface and is slightly syrupy. Do not overcook, or the syrup will get too thick.

Ingredients

Salad
- 4 cups (1 L) baby arugula or baby spinach
- 1 cup (250 ml) small red or yellow grape tomatoes
- 4 cups (1 L) cubed watermelon
- 1/3 cup diced reduced fat feta cheese (2 1/2 oz/75 g)
- 1/3 cup (80 ml) toasted chopped pistachios
- 1/4 cup (60 ml) chopped mint or parsley

Dressing
- 1 cup (250 ml) balsamic vinegar
- 1/4 cup (60 ml) maple syrup

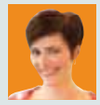
It isn't 'just water'



NUTRI-BITES
Theresa Albert

Oh, sure, it is 92 per cent water, but the other eight per cent of watermelon is a powerhouse. (And there is no such thing as "just" water anyway). Watermelon is a rare, excellent source of an important amino acid called citrulline, which is key in exercise muscle recovery and the elimination of ammonia.

The red flesh is delicious, but the white rind is even more concentrated in this nutrient. Don't throw it away! Trim the outer skin and save the white, less tasty portion to make a relish that is delicious with a cheese board, on baguette or burgers.

Watermelon Relish
- 2 cups (500 ml) watermelon rind. Remove the dark-green skin and cut the white part into 1/4-inch (0.6 cm) cubes
- 2 tsp salt (10 ml)
- 2 1/2 cups water (625 ml) and 3/4 cup (185 ml) water, divided
- 1/2 cup (125 ml) sugar
- 2 tbps(25 ml) lemon zest, finely grated
- 2 tbsp (25 ml) lemon juice
- 1/2 tsp (2 1/2 ml) cinnamon
- 1/8 tsp cloves (0.5 ml)

Mix rind with salt and 2 1/2 cups (625 ml) water. Let stand covered at room temperature overnight. Drain and rinse well.

In saucepan, combine sugar with 3/4 cup (185 ml) water, the lemon zest and juice and cinnamon and cloves. Bring to boil over medium heat, add rind and cook gently for 40 mins. or until the rind is translucent and tender (do not boil hard as the mixture could caramelize). When done, remove from heat and cool. Keep refrigerated.

This one takes the cake

What makes carrot cake such a crowd pleaser is its soft, dense texture and distinct flavour created by the aromatic mixture of cinnamon and sugar. With three cups of carrots included in the recipe and two grams of fibre per serving, it's the perfect cake for any family occasion.

This recipe makes 16 servings. NEWS CANADA

1. Preheat oven to 350 F (180 C)

Ingredients

Cake
- 1 cup (250 ml)canola oil
- 1 cup (250 ml) granulated sugar
- 3/4 cup (175 ml) packed brown sugar
- 4 eggs
- 2 cups (500 ml) Robin Hood Nutri Flour Blend Tastes Like White
- 2 tsp (10 ml) cinnamon
- 2 tsp (10 ml) baking soda
- 2 tsp (10 ml) baking powder
- 1 tsp (5 ml) salt
- 3 cups (750 ml) finely grated carrots (approx. 1 lb/454 g)

Cream Cheese Icing
- 1/4 cup (50 ml) butter, softened
- 1 cup (250 ml) regular or low fat cream cheese, softened
- 4 cups (1 L) icing sugar
- 1 tsp (5 ml) vanilla extract
- Milk (as needed)

and grease two 9-inch (23 cm) cake pans.

2. Beat oil and sugars in bowl until combined. Add eggs, one at a time, beating well after each addition.

3. Combine flour, cinnamon, baking soda, baking powder and salt in separate large bowl.

4. Add flour mixture to egg mixture. Mix, just until combined. Fold in carrots.

5. Divide batter evenly in prepared pans. Bake in preheated oven 30 minutes or until toothpick inserted in centre of cake comes out clean. Cool in pans on wire cooling rack 20 mins. Remove from pans and cool on wire cooling rack.

6. For icing: cream butter and cream cheese in bowl. Add icing sugar, one cup (250 ml) at a time. Beat well after each addition. Add vanilla. Continue beating until fluffy. Add 1 tbsp (15 ml) milk at a time to thin out icing if necessary. Place one cake on serving dish. Spread with icing. Top with remaining cake layer. Spread top with remaining icing.

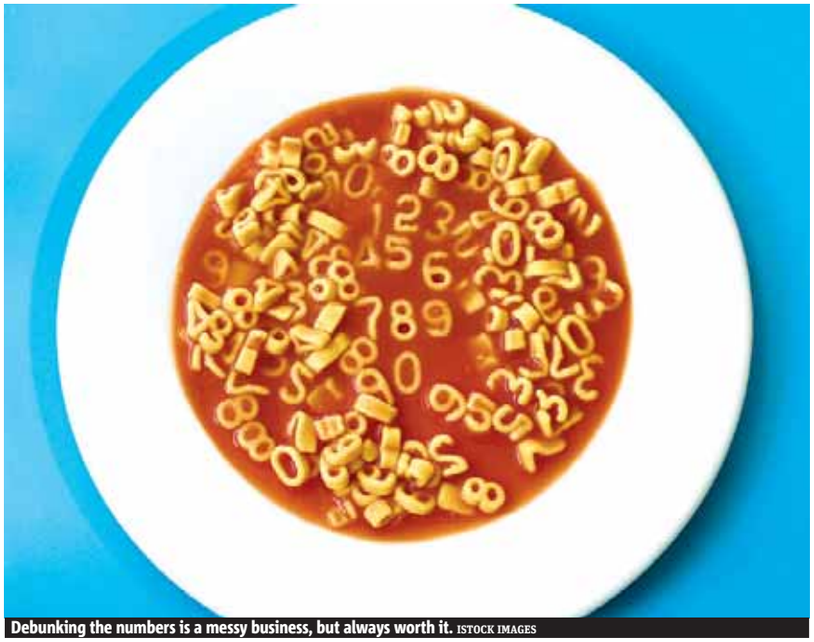
Canadians on the brink of debt disaster? Bank says the statistics may be flawed



Debunking the numbers is a messy business, but always worth it. ISTOCK IMAGES

YOUR MONEY
Alison Griffiths
money@metronews.ca

"Statistics are like a bikini. What they reveal is suggestive, but what they conceal is vital." So said the late Aaron Levenstein, American professor of business.

I'm sure that's what TD Bank analysts commented to each other when they re-analyzed the oft-reported statistics about Canadians' perilous indebtedness.

The numbers go like this: Canadians' debt-to-income ratio is 162, so we owe $162 for every $100 of after tax income. This is worrying because Americans ran up a debt-to-income ratio of 163 just before the financial crash.

The falling sky is nigh, say the financial prognosticators, especially in light of Canada's stratospheric housing market.

But TD maintains that the statistics are flawed. The Canadian figures include interest on non-mortgage debt and out of pocket health-care expenses, neither of which factor in to the American numbers.

When such costs are taken into account, our pre-crash neighbours had a debt-to-income ratio of 177 while we Canadians now stand at 156 per cent.

Certainly reason for concern, but we're not on the brink of Armageddon.

TD's reanalysis begs the question of why bogus, or at least flawed, statistics and conclusions can float around without contradiction, sometimes for decades.

These days surveys, reports and studies are hugely popular with all manner of companies and government agencies (TD, by the way, loves them.)

They're cheap advertising in a time of shrinking media outlets and budgets. For overworked journalists, predigested research is very attractive.

Often the surveys produce an interesting slice of information about our lives and society. But some are just plain garbage.

A recent one about insurance bothered me and I discovered that most of the information had been lifted from an American study and then Canadianized poorly.

The problem with inaccurate or misleading surveys and reports is that they can create or solidify public opinion.

Take the level of Canadian indebtedness. Our debt level is too high, no question. But when statistics indicate that we're nearing a precipice, the public gets scared.

Worse, politicians leap into the fray and create lousy policies based on faulty assumptions.

I'd like to see a lot more debunking done, along the lines of TD Bank's recent report.

Getting touchy feely with robots

ELISABETH BRAW
Metro World News

Attention naysayers who predict that robots will never be like humans: the robots just made a huge leap in our direction. Researchers at the University of California, Berkeley, have invented robot skin — and it reacts when touched.

"With the interactive e-skin, we have demonstrated an elegant system on plastic that can be wrapped around different objects to enable a new form of human-machine interfacing," explained Ali Javey, an associate professor of electrical engineering and computer sciences at Berkeley who led the research team.

The e-skin is not really skin, of course: it's flexible plastic.

But its sensors react just like human skin. Lights flash when the skin is touched: softly in response to light touching, brightly in response to more pressure. The plastic sheets can be wrapped around robot limbs. This will help the android creatures react to human beings. But the purpose of the skin is not to make robots more human.

Instead, the researchers envisage it being used in wallpaper that functions like today's touchscreen devices.

Not your average screen

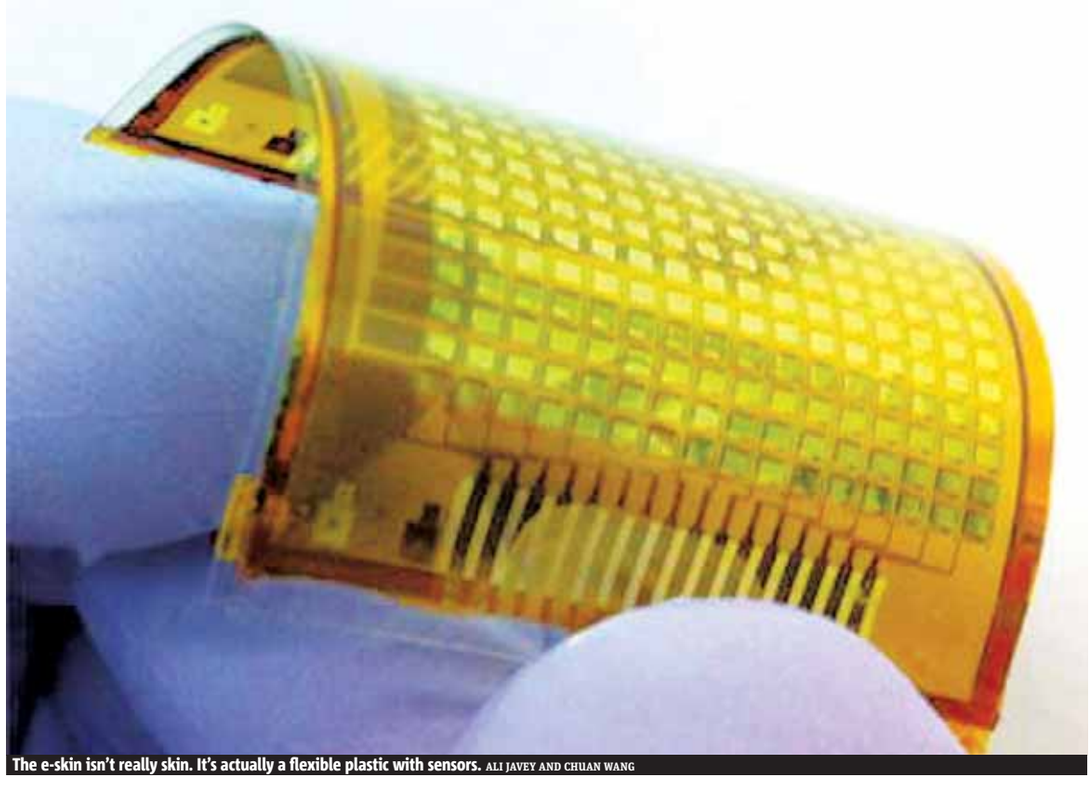
"Unlike the stiff touchscreens on iPhones, computer monitors and ATMs, the e-skin is flexible and can be easily laminated on any surface."

Chuan Wang, study's lead co-author

"Unlike the stiff touchscreens on iPhones, computer monitors and ATMs, the e-skin is flexible and can be easily laminated on any surface," says the study's lead co-author, Chuan Wang, an assistant professor of electrical and computer engineering at Michigan State University.

"I could also imagine an e-skin bandage applied to an arm as a health monitor that continuously checks blood pressure and pulse rates," Wang says.

The results of the study, which was funded by the Pentagon's pioneering research arm, DARPA, were published in the scientific journal Nature Materials.



The e-skin isn't really skin. It's actually a flexible plastic with sensors. ALI JAVEY AND CHUAN WANG

Argos backup gets his shot vs. Lions

CFL. QB Collaros steps in to replace Ray against a team looking for its fourth straight win

Travis Lulay knows what Zach Collaros is going through.

It wasn't that long ago that Lulay, now a Grey Cup champion and MVP with the B.C. Lions, was a rookie quarterback getting ready to make his first CFL start.

Collaros will get his shot in place of injured Toronto starter Ricky Ray when the Argonauts (2-2) host the Lions (3-1) in a rare Tuesday night game in Toronto.

"He's excited, I can guarantee you that," Lulay said Monday. "I can think back to my first start. I saw him doing an interview and you could see that excitement.

"Everyone's been there. We can relate to being in that situation."

The 24-year-old Collaros spent most of last season on the injured list and sat No. 4 on Toronto's depth chart but will get his first professional start after Ray suffered a knee injury in the Argonauts' 35-19 victory over the Winnipeg Blue Bombers on July 19.

The extended layoff between games due to a scheduling quirk gave Collaros time to prepare to face the Lions and their No. 1-ranked defence.

"I'm excited to get going," said the University of Cincinnati product. "It's good to have three full practices under my belt and it's going to make the transition that much easier for me."

Collaros has completed seven of 10 passes for 112 yards in limited action in 2013.

Lions head coach Mike Benevides, whose team defeated Toronto 24-16 at B.C. Place Stadium in Week 2, says the Lions will have to be careful with Collaros early.

"We've got to be vigilant. We've got to make sure that we stay sound and make sure that we don't give him easy things," he said. "You have to pick your spots when you attack him." THE CANADIAN PRESS

Winning streak on the line

The B.C. Lions go for their fourth consecutive win, when they play the Argonauts on Tuesday.

- The Lions currently sit third in the West Division, despite a 3-1 record. A win over Toronto would put the Lions at eight points, which would equal that of the Calgary Stampeders. The Saskatchewan Roughriders, off to a 5-0 start, lead the West with 10 points. METRO

IIHF

Edler could face further discipline

According to multiple reports, Canucks defenceman Alex Edler could face an additional two-game ban from the 2014 Olympics due to a suspension he received during the 2013 world championships.

Alex Edler GETTY IMAGES FILE

Edler was suspended for the remaining two games of this year's world championships for a dangerous knee-on-knee hit on Canada's Eric Staal.

According to a report from Sweden, Edler, accompanied by his agent Mark Stowe and Tommy Boustedt of the Swedish Ice Hockey Association, had a hearing with the IIHF disciplinary committee on Saturday. METRO

Northwest League

Canadians added to all-star game

Two members of the Vancouver Canadians — Surrey's Justin Atkinson and left-handed pitcher Kyle Anderson — were added to the Northwest League all-star roster.

Those two will take the place of their former teammates, Eric Brown and Jordan Leyland, who were both promoted to the Lansing Lugnuts.

The all-star game goes Aug. 6 in Everett, Wash.

The Canadians also added right-handed pitcher Tom Robson of Ladner, and left-handed pitcher Shaun Dawson of Lethbridge, Alta., to their roster. METRO

Jay DeMerit GETTY IMAGES FILE

DeMerit, Caps to resume contract talks

As Jay DeMerit eyes a possible and yet improbable return to the Vancouver Whitecaps lineup perhaps sometime next month, contract talks between the defender and the local club also appear set to resume.

The 33-year-old DeMerit, the club's first-ever Major League Soccer signing, is in the final year of his current deal, which is worth $375,000 in guaranteed compensation for this season.

Initial discussions first began last off-season, but were put on hold after DeMerit suffered a ruptured Achilles tendon in the first regular-season match of the season against Toronto FC at BC Place Stadium.

DeMerit had surgery two days later, saying a week after the injury occurred that the recovery timeline would be six to eight months.

A fan inquired about DeMerit's contract status on Saturday — following the Whitecaps' 1-0 loss to the Philadelphia Union — during a question-and-answer session for season-ticket holders.

"Prior to Jay actually getting injured, in the off-season, we were, at that time, discussing negotiating a new contract with Jay," said club president Bob Lenarduzzi in a phone interview on Monday.

"Of course, he got injured in the first game of the season and our intent was still to honour what we had talked about in terms of continuing to discuss his status with our club. And we did that even after the injury.

"At that time, it was decided we would wait until he got himself fit and then we would begin discussing at that time. So that's where we're at." CAM TUCKER/METRO

Horoscopes

♈ Aries
March 21 - April 20
Make the best use of every minute of your time today. What you do is important, but how you do it is even more so right now. Why? Because influential people are watching.

♉ Taurus
April 21 - May 21
Partnership problems must not be allowed to detract from the wonderful opportunities now coming your way. If there are any outstanding squabbles, you must deal with them now.

♊ Gemini
May 22 - June 21
People are going out of their way to be nice to you and you should go out of your way to return the favour. Fun is for everyone but especially for you.

♋ Cancer
June 22 - July 23
Why are you hesitating to start something you know you will enjoy — and which could make lots of money? Whatever the reason, you've got to get over it or you will look back later and regret that you were not more dynamic.

♌ Leo
July 24 - Aug. 23
There are major changes going on around you and the good news is every one of them can be used by you to further your interests. Whatever else you do today don't fear change — make it work for you.

♍ Virgo
Aug. 24 - Sept. 23
It seems you are focusing on things you fear rather than things you have to look forward to. That's silly and you know it. Everyone else thinks you're a star, so why don't you? Start acting like one today.

♎ Libra
Sept. 24 - Oct. 23
Fate has a way of giving us what we need, though whether we want it at the time is another matter, of course. What happens today may shock you but it will also inspire you to aim higher.

♏ Scorpio
Oct. 24 - Nov. 22
Today's Venus-Pluto link will bring back your passion for something you seem to have forgotten about for a while. This time you'll give it your undivided attention, and this time you'll see it through.

♐ Sagittarius
Nov. 23 - Dec. 21
These may be fun times but you should also be giving some thought to what changes you would like to see. They must, of course, be serious changes. Going through the motions won't be any good.

♑ Capricorn
Dec. 22 - Jan. 20
You'll be moving around today, in pursuit of things you have set your heart on. Remember that not everyone shares your taste in possessions.

♒ Aquarius
Jan. 21 - Feb. 19
The planets are urging you to put bad feelings behind you and patch up a relationship that still has a lot of mileage in it. You have come so far together, surely you can go all the way to the finish line.

♓ Pisces
Feb. 20 - March 20
You may not like having to say "no" to people who depend on you but if you don't it will be you who loses out. Haven't they been depending on you a bit too much? SALLY BROMPTON
